PROJECT

Two Doughboy Square

CONTRACTOR

Jendoco Construction Corporation

"This state-of-the-art contemporary addition respectfully expands and enhances the 1902 bank building at Doughboy Square in Lawrenceville. Jendoco's ten-year long project problem solving collaboration with the owner-architect has produced a marriage of old and new structures that exceed the sum of its parts. The logistical constraints of working within a wedge-shaped site bordered by heavily trafficked streets made this complex project all the more challenging. The final product is esthetically appealing from both the exterior and interior and reflects the synergy of teamwork and careful attention to detail. The facade of the addition is deftly stitched to that of the original building. The interiors offer warm, friendly, and efficient workspaces which incorporate sculpture and special finishes that were installed collaboratively by the contractor and the architect. This project celebrates the past, the future, and the importance of teamwork."
